is of marriage have been made to Miss Martha Smith since she wa Howard S. Lower, for breach of promise All of them arrived by letter at the Coates House yesterday before Miss Smith left Kansas City for San Francisco She show ed them to a number of women friends who had called to say good-by, and they laughed over them together.

One letter came from a man in Buffalo, N. Y. He was so certain that Mis-Smith would accept his proposal that he had the plans already matured and kindly outlined them to her, "I want you to put $19,000 into a lithe-

Buffalo. The other Buffalo man was milder and less aggressive. He modestly suggested that "it might be well to meet and become acquainted." He wanted Miss Smith to join with him in the establishment of a medical institute at Buffalo. His age was 36, he was comely, though not to say irresistibly handsome, and felt sanguinely certain that Miss Smith would like him. He hoped so, at least, and would

him. He hoped so at least, and would sleep none until he received a definite assurance from her hand. There was no doubting the good faith of a man in a small Kansas town, who expressed his sympathy for Miss Smith and his confidence in her. He had read the accounts of the trial of her breach of promise suit carefully, he said, and saw clearly how she had been deceived and imposed upon. Then the writer, who wrote a very long letter with apparent case, entered upon a philosophical dissertation on treacherry, deception, infidelity, the baseness of turpfinde and the nobility of virtue.

Besides a heart that was honest and true, this Kansan admitted that he had little to offer Miss Smith. If she concluded, after meeting him, that she preferred not to marry, she might accept office work in his office.

She sixhed.

Then she opened several anonymous letters, some of them written by people of Kansas City, expressing their belief in her good intentions, their admiration for the way in which she had been vindicated, and their hope that she would find more of sunshine and felicity in the future than she had found in the past.

"Felicity! indeed! As though I cared any longer whether I lived or died," said Miss Smith. "So few people have any enjoyment amid the sorrows and adversities and disappointments and sufferings of life that, as a plain business proposition, I don't believe it pays, It isn't worth it." Miss Smith, who was plaintiff in the most remarkable breach of promise suit eyer tried in Jackson county, left the most remarkable breach of problem the ever tried in Jackson county, left the Union depot for San Francisco at 10:30 yes-thready told in The Union depot for San Francisco at 10.20 yesterday morning. As already told in The Journal, she is to accept a position as traveling saleswoman for a dental supply-seempany of that cit. Within the next six weeks her lawyers will collect the $25,000 tudgment against Dr. Lowry, or as much of it as is collectible, and forward it to her.

vatery Surrounding the Identity of Chester Healey and Fred Wells Deepening.

The Cherryvale mystery deepens, the tangle becomes more complicated the farther efforts proceed toward establishing whether or not Fred Wells, so called, who died at Cherryvale in November, was really Chester Heavy, who disappeared from Elkport, Ia., twenty-five years ago, having apposedly been murdered and his body thrown into the river.

Mrs. Fannie Healey, of Kansas City, who was the wife of Chester Healey at the time of his disappearance, returned last evening from Cherryvale completely mystified. She was shown a picture of Fred Wells taken dout twenty years ago, which she declare was not a picture of Healey. She was also

BIG STOCKMEN HERE.

Sales of Herefords Attracting Men From All Over the United

The sale of Hereford cattle, which will begin to-day at the pavilion at the stock yards and will continue for three days, has attracted to the city many of the most prominent breeders of the United States. The sales which have been held here during the past, notably the Armour and Cross sales, have established the reputation of Kansas City as the best market of the leading breeders have said in conversation at these meetings and in papers at the conventions held here, the great demand is in the territory tributary to Kansas City and the greatest heros in the country are nearer to this point than any other suitable as a market. He is well known among breeders in all parts of this country. Frit day Grant Holliday, of Fort Scott, Kas., will have Hereford stock on sale.

Frank Rockefeller, vice president of the Standard Oil Company, arrived yesterday. He said:

"I came here from New York city expressly to attend the sale that begins tomorrow. I will be compelled to return immediately after the sales to New York.

"In a couple of weeks I will return and keep some promises to visit some friends in Missouri and enjoy myself gazing at some of the finest Hereford cattle in the world, which they possess. I will not be able to go to my ranch in Kiowa county, Kas., unless I am tempted to make some purchases at the Sale.

"I have great faith in Kansas, not only as a stock raising state, but in its people and its varied industries. They have shown that they can stand prosperity without indulging in speculation as in the boom days, and their progress will continue."

The career of the market has been one of steady advancement every year, regardless of hard times or inancial flurries, and the strong help the cattle and packing industries are to the city is shown here also. The city has withstood hard times most successfully, largely because of the regular incomes received by those employed in the stock and packing business. About 1.800 men are employed at the stock yards, and about $500 in the macking houses—a outl of employed at the stock yards, and about $5.90 in the packing houses—a obtai of 10,390 breadwinners, or about 50,000 people in the city receiving their support from these two industries.

At the conclusion of the address, which contained many other points of interest, Mr. McCoy was given a vote of thanks.

Want Creek Grazing Lands Used. A letter was read from Captain J. II. Waite, of the Barnes Live Stock Commis-Waite, of the Harnes Live Stock Commis-sion Company, asking the Commercial Club to take action, as have the Live Stock ex-change and its individual members, con-cerning the leasing the Creek nation graz-ing lands. It has been the custom of the Texas cattle owners to start north with their cattle through the Creek nation about the latter part of March, fattening their cattle on the grass, and then putting them on the market. on the market.

Assistant Secretary Ryan has recently ruled that this plan could not be followed this year, because of the movement to allot the lands in severalty to the Indians, if the ruling is enforced it will
